

CALL FOR PAPERS

SPECIAL ISSUE OF
JOURNAL OF ENTERPRISE INFORMATION MANAGEMENT ON
Production Research and Information Management
Guest-Edited by Prof. Cengiz Kahraman & Prof. Ferhan Çebi

Journal of Enterprise Information Management (JEIM) publishes high quality articles of significant intellectual interest and commercial relevance to managers, consultants, academics and students operating within an information intense business driven enterprise. The journal contributes to the normative literature, providing conceptual and practical insights underpinned by innovative findings that add to the body of knowledge.

JEIM publishes research findings from internationally distinguished experts. Scholarly examinations of the latest theory and practice from the foremost research institutions are augmented by contributions from senior business managers and consultants, who report on specific enterprise case experiences that promote the learning of others by comparing and contrasting environmental settings. This blended contribution of theoretical and practical outcomes results in an extensive communication of commercial findings and audience understanding of current, applied and rigorous information management that spans an enterprise and its rich supply chains.
